GIM's Guide to Career Clarity

First off start by examining your current and previous positions, ask yourself:

- > Do you enjoy the work you are doing? Which aspects of the work do you enjoy?
- > Are you seeking to progress within this industry/career or another?
- > What are your main drivers? (i.e. money, praise, success, work/life balance etc)
- > Is your salary comfortable? What salary are you looking for?
- > What do you like/dislike about the work environment/culture?
- > How does your current location suit you?

Once you have established how you really feel about your current role and company, you will find that you have a much improved vision of how you want your next role to be.

The second important step is to understand the market!

There are a number of resources you can utilise to ensure that you truly understand the industry in which you will be interviewing:

- > Talk to a GIM Consultant;
- > Examine Trade Journals and Press;
- > Follow industry publications;
- > Look at company and market information etc on the internet;
- > Talk to colleagues/friends and families to find contacts and get hands on information.

Make sure you consider:

- > Where the market is going?
- > What skills are in demand? and
- > How competitive is the industry?

GIM Consultants are here to assist you in realising which are the best opportunities for you. Even if you have a clear vision of what your next position will be, try and remain open to different ideas, after all GIM might surprise you with a fantastic position or company, you hadn't considered before!!
